

10 Things

YOU DON'T KNOW ABOUT WOMEN

By Faith Salie

1. Your lady will never be skinnier than she is on her wedding day. So if your bride's got back, just know that your wife will get backer, and fronter. (And sider, too.)

2. Women do not love weddings. We think wedding invitations are bills written in calligraphy.

3. We have to "adjust" our private parts, too. Sometimes our nipples get out of orbit and we look like a Picasso painting.

4. The hottest man is the one who wants an age-appropriate woman. Case in point: Paul Newman—still hot; Jack Nicholson—man boobs. It's Mother Nature's ultimate revenge.

5. Men who say "we're pregnant" are the bad kind of gay.

6. When you're with your kids, it's not called "babysitting" or "being Mr. Mom." It's called "being a father."

7. Women don't take forever to pee. It's other chicks who make us wait. We have absolutely no idea what we're doing in there, and we look at one another in the bathroom line like, What the hell? Then, to keep ourselves occupied, we play with one another's boobs.

8. Applauding every time you see us naked is almost enough approbation.

9. You like to focus on your pecs at the gym, but it's your inguinal ligament—that line that goes from your lower hip to your special place—that makes us ovulate on sight.

10. We liked The Da Vinci Code (the book, not the movie) because we always thought Jesus was sexy. Now it's a fact.
